Sailing Savvy

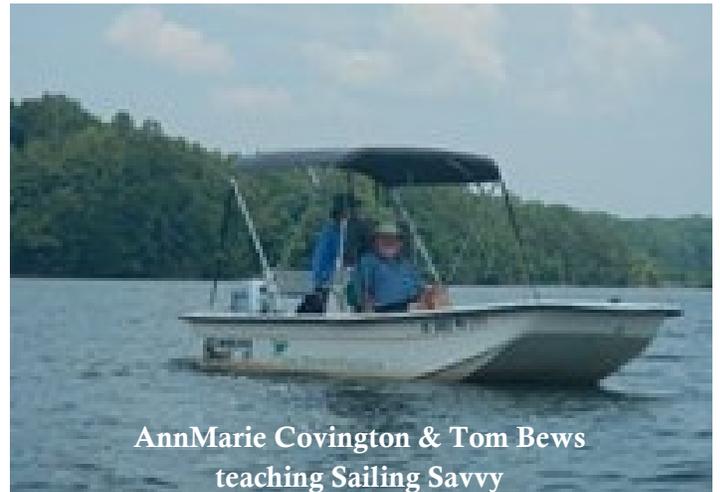

For those who did not come out on Sunday, July 15 you missed a great event.

AnnMarie was very well prepared, and everyone picked up a tip or two from the Chalk Talk. For me, several light bulbs went off. Then, by practicing "stopping at the dock" out in the middle of the lake, I think I really started to build a little muscle memory.

Having lots of practice starts also was of huge benefit to me. I'd never skippered a boat in a real race (heck, I avoid taking the tiller EVER), but I found myself determined to master the art of understanding how to tell whether the pin or Committee Boat was favored, getting to the right spot, maneuvering among other racers, and crossing the start line at the right time and with good boat speed. I had some bloopers and some good starts while trying different tactics...and now I'm motivated to try again.

Thank you AnnMarie for organizing this! And thanks to Tom Bews too for his help on the "Committee Boat" calling out the count down times.

A BIG Thank You to All Our Sailing Instructors and Assistants!

Our volunteer members who teach and assist with sailing classes are the bomb! They are central to making our club succeed and grow. Their dedication and their willingness to spend their valuable time are priceless and very much appreciated.

In no particular order, here is a list of instructors and assistants. Please express your appreciation next time you sail with them.

Top o' the list are Otto Afanador, adult class coordinator and instructor and Linda Heffernan, junior class coordinator and instructor. Linda and Otto, "We could not have done it without you" is an understatement! Also, Hudson Barker, Steve Raper, Brad Earle, Chris Miller, Ken Butler, Robert Bouknight, Cathy Leonard, Shari Foresman, Bill Byrd, Eric Rasmussen, Jim Heffernan, Joleen Rasmussen, Dawn-Michelle Oliver, Bill Young, Robert Uzzle, Jason Gustavson, Stephanie Taylor, Jackson Pickard, Angela Mattern, George Bageant, Jack Clodfelter, Elizabeth Bonnell, Trish McDermott, AnnMarie Covington, Caleb Vogel (Hudson's grandson), and Jack and Emma McArthur (George Bageant's grandchildren).

Many of the people listed above taught or assisted in multiple classes. Thank you all!

We still have three weekend classes and one week-long adult/junior class coming up. If you have a day or two to help, you'll find it rewarding and helpful to your own sailing experiences. Most classes can use extra help, so please sign up on the scratch sheet:

Looking ahead to next year: we need a Rear Commodore who oversees all of the sailing classes. With the help of Linda Heffernan and Otto Afanador, you are certain to succeed!

They will compete as Junior Varsity and Varsity.

Questions: contact Mark Hayes, mhayeslaw@triad.rr.com.

Mentor a Sailing Class Student or Two

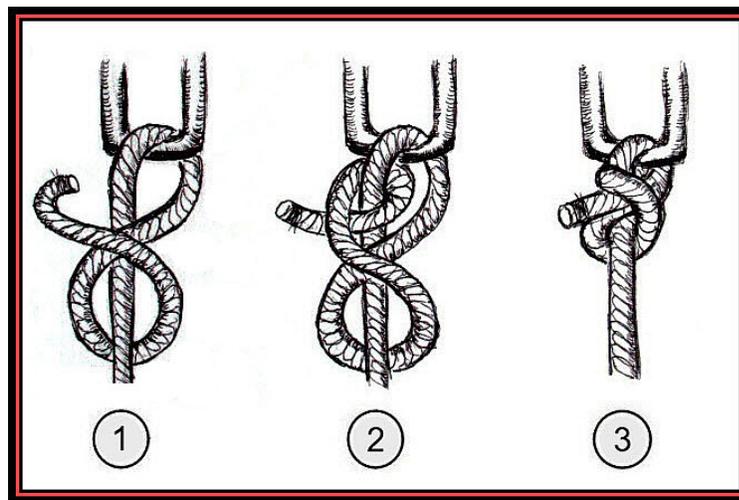

Saturday, July 28, 11 a.m.

The July Social Sail theme is mentoring students. All sailors are encouraged to come out, take one or two students sailing, and help them continue learning and continue sailing.

Instructors: contact your students! Have them meet at the flagpole by the water.

Everyone should bring their own lunch and a snack to share after sailing. Beverages will be provided by the club.

Captain John's Sailing Tips

What sailing knot could you use to tie off a main or headsail halyard, hoist yourself safe and sound aloft, tie off the foot of a reefed sail or hang fenders, hammocks, or bags so that they stay in place? Not many marine knots are as compact and trustworthy as this one.

Tie the Buntline hitch to secure a halyard to a shackle, contain the foot of a reefed mainsail, or lash gear onto deck to hold it safe 'n secure in a seaway.

Tie the Buntline hitch to secure a halyard to a shackle, contain the foot of a reefed mainsail, or lash gear onto deck to hold it safe 'n secure in a seaway. Read more below.

Why Know This Ancient Sailing Knot?

I believe today's sailor can often look to the past for reminders of those "works every time" tips and techniques. And sailing knots that you can rely on--even with your life in the balance--are the ones I like to learn. The little-known buntline hitch was used by square rigger crews to tie off the foot of the sail when they furled.

And it held through thick 'n thin. Shake, rattle, or roll, and the buntline will hold like a stubborn barnacle to your boat bottom. So why would the modern-day sailor want to know this super knot from the past? Check out these seven super uses of the buntline hitch to decide if this might be right for you...

Secure the foot (bunt) of a reefed sail.

Make a compact knot in the end of any line.

Hold together without untying when shocked or flogged.

Tie a halyard to a shackle for peace-of-mind hoisting.

Form a safe knot to go aloft in a bosun's chair.

Hang fenders, bags, or other sailing gear.

Add an easy-to-remember knot to your sailing skills.

Three Steps to Tie the Buntline Hitch

Grab a piece of practice line about two to three feet long. Practice along with the top illustration. In no time, you will master this super sailing knot and be ready to use it wherever in the world you choose to sail.

1. Pass the bitter end through the shackle, ring or fitting. Loop the bitter end over the standing part and then behind the standing part as shown (illustration 1). Note that you begin the Buntline Hitch just like a clove hitch.
2. Thread the bitter end behind the standing part and tuck it beneath itself as shown (illustration 2). Note that this completes a virtual "inside clove hitch".
3. Pull on the bitter end to compact the knot. Slide it along the standing part and snug it up against the fitting (illustration 3). Take an extra second or two to remove all excess slack from the knot to make it safe, secure, and compact.

Best regards,

Captain John

LYYC Is Going Green!

Please refuse and return straws at a restaurant or drive-thru. Our goal is no more plastic water bottles, Styrofoam cups or Straws in the landfill. Did you know that only about 9% of what we recycle is actually recycled? Have you seen the plastic islands in the ocean? We encourage everyone to bring a reusable water bottle and coffee cup to events at the lake.

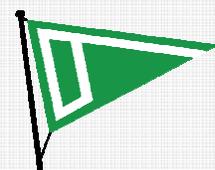

Thanks to everyone's efforts to reduce plastics in our environment. Think about it and act.
